Sixty Six Oilfield Services, Inc. Answers Shareholder Questions

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA, May 21, 2018 –SIXTY SIX OILFIELD SERVICES, INC. (OTCBB: SSOF), answers pressing shareholder questions. Chief Executive Officer, Dave Ho said, “As we move swiftly through the second quarter, I want to take time out to answer some shareholder questions e-mailed to us. These questions have been asked by numerous investors over the last several months and we take them seriously. We are dedicated to continuing to improve our transparency while our plans for the 5 Star Rig and Supply acquisition proceeds according to plan. As we are nearing the completion of that process and we will be making new announcements with further information in the very near future.”

SSOF has an audit that has been going on for way too long, any hint as to when this will be completed?

The audit is current on pause due to our LOI letter for the acquisition of 5 Star Rig and Supply.

I am concerned about dilution and reverse splits. Can the company shed some light on potential future reverse split and dilutions?

There are no immediate plans for dilutions or splits in the future. However, do not take that as a guarantee one way or another. If we make plans to do so, we will announce them in the most transparent way possible.

What are your thoughts of a share buyback? As it stands according to your financials your company is extremely undervalued and with your cash flow you could buy back some of your shares.

Due to the 5 Star deal, there are no plans for a stock buyback.

What is the status of your two large potential oil rig sales?

The projects are very much alive and we are working to complete them in the third quarter. These projects are a very important part of the company’s growth this year and we have not wavered in our pursuit of these goals.
